Special Keynote: Leah Katz-Hernandez

From February 2015 to January 2017, Leah Katz-Hernandez served as the West Wing Receptionist for the President - a position commonly known as 'ROTUS,' or Receptionist of the United States. With a desk just steps away from the Oval Office, Leah welcomed the President's guests into the West Wing Lobby. Leah rose from being a volunteer in the field for the Obama-Biden 2008 campaign to hold multiple positions in the Obama's White House, campaign, and Inaugural teams.

In between Obama-related positions, Leah was awarded a fellowship on Capitol Hill to focus on strategies for successful transition to lasting employment and independence for millennials with disabilities. Leah also advised the AT&T corporation on youth-related disability issues as a part of an advisory panel for two years before entering public service full-time.
